Stop autism, remove the root cause

In our continuing research on autism, we believe the key to curb the growing population of autistic children lies on adults that mainly give birth to autistic children. This autism affects subsequent generations and may lead to tumour growth and premature death.

Discoveries on Autistic Virus

It is natural for parents to seek professional help when they have autistic children, but they usually do not seek help for themselves. From our research studies of 400 cases here, many adults are unaware that the autistic virus called R1H2 is in the mother's womb where the unborn baby resides. This virus attacks the baby even before the child is born! The child will grow up with the virus which usually resides in the sexual organs, and over time, migrate to the brain to cause brain and other organ dysfunctions. Once this happens, signs of abnormalities appear which includes speech, sight, hearing, motion instability, non-focus, anti-social behaviour, headaches and migraines, quick temperament, and being prone to sickness. Once the first child is affected, the rest of the children in the family will also be affected, sooner or later, as shown in our studies.

Autistic Virus Could Lead to Tumours and Womb Complications

From our case studies, this virus weakens the immune system as it travels to almost any part of the body through the blood system. We observe that this virus, together with other pathogenic invasions, could lead to the growth of fibroids, ovary and uterus cysts, endometriosis, tumours and even cancer. Some experience heavy and delayed menses, miscarriages, inability to give birth, or giving birth to premature babies and abnormal growth.

Parents Should Seek Help for Themselves
Therefore it is wise for parents to seek specialised help to remove this virus once and for all so that their subsequent children will be spared. If not, it will pass down in the family tree. Most parents are breadwinners, and once this virus attacks, some have to stop working and go through stress and depression with their affected children. One affected child is stressful enough, let alone two or more! This often strains the marital relationship and may even cause the break up of the family unit.

The constant attacks put stress on the parents so it is imperative to remove the virus or not it will return unless associated with a carrier through sexual intimacy.

Get To The Root

To solve autism, bio-polar, ADD/ADHD, we have to remove the root cause. If a tree is infected with white ants, nurturing will be fruitless if the white ants are not removed. Likewise if the virus is not removed, professional and parental training will bear little fruit. In our research, we remove the virus within one to two months, and thereafter, repair and restore the brain and other organ cells from three to 18 months, depending on the severity. Once removed, repaired and restored, professional and parental interventions will be more meaningful and fruitful. Autism affected by pathogens, tumours and toxins other than R1H2 will not be passed down to the next generation.

Case Studies

A lady in her late 50s had the autistic virus since birth that weakened her body. Together with mycoplasma attack, her kidneys, liver, spinal cord, thyroid and bone were partially damaged. She had fibroids, ovary cyst and endometriosis and breast cancer, all potentially linked to autistic virus. Within a month, her autistic virus and mycoplasma appeared gone, and we are now restoring the various organs including the brain.

A lady in her late 30s had an autistic child under our research care and had the virus removed and organs repaired to become almost as good as any child. Unknown to us, the mother lost her second baby due to the virus. Then she conceived the third and I warned her of the consequences as she has not been diligent in removing the virus before she conceived. After giving birth, the child had a cyst in the kidneys and within days, he died. It was found that the mother had fibroids, ovary cysts and endometriosis together with the virus at the time when she conceived. The husband came for treatment only after 16 weeks into the pregnancy. It is wise for both mother and father to get treatment if they are affected even before conceiving.

A man in his late 40s came to seek help. He had migraines since young and found to have the autistic virus. He had two strokes and three heart attacks due to the virus before he finally sought our help. It is always better to have treatment in the early stages for better recovery and less expensive.
