

An Answer to Autism?

Myths, mysteries and mastery breakthrough on autism, a potential hope to many who are hopelessly suffering and waiting for the right answers.

Understanding autism

It is a common belief that autism is due to herpes, rubella viruses, vaccinations and environmental toxins. But we believe these could have triggered the autistic virus already present in the body. In our studies of 200 autistic children, we found 99.9 per cent had R1H2 virus, creating havoc in their bodies.

R1H2 virus in the mother's womb

This virus is usually present in the affected mother's womb. Our research shows the virus attacks the unborn child in the womb. For males, it attacks the brain while in the females, it is usually lodged in the womb, with some migrated to the brain before birth or during teenage or adulthood. This is why autism affects more boys initially than girls.

Source of virus in the mother's womb

It is observed that in most cases, transmission is through sexual intimacy of affected partner/partners. Some have been directly from their mothers. This is not genetic but a viral invasion.

Women affected by the virus

Once the immune system is under attack, the virus in the womb of affected women could partially migrate to the brain to cause imbalance to body, mind and spirit in the long term. It is better to deal with the virus in the early days before it attacks the brain as some had to give up their jobs due to intense mental stress.

Health challenges from such virus

If the brain is under attack, some experience sleep disorders, migraines, hyperactivity, restlessness, stress, depression, with suicidal tendencies. Depending on the degree of attack, it creates emotional and physical instability, and may affect mobility, speech, focus, vision, hearing, memory, body pain and coordination. If the virus resides in the womb, there could be possibilities of vaginal discharge, cysts, fibroids, fungal itch, period disorders and bloated stomach.

Danger of unborn baby in affected womb

Chances are the unborn child would be infected with the virus throughout the lifetime, affecting future generations if any should give birth. Our local research confirms that if a child is affected, the subsequent children would most likely be affected unless the virus is effectively dealt with during the pregnancy. If a child is known to have the virus, chances are it will also be found in the mother's womb. The father may not be affected unless the sexual penetration is deep.

Energy healing deals with this virus

Our research shows that introducing a right energy level into the body could balance the organ energy levels and boost the immune system to effectively deal against the virus. Using energy booster patches placed on the body on 24/7 is a revolutionary answer. The virus is usually dealt with within six months. However, if the brain is affected, the healing repair could take up to two years to restore the brain to near normality unless the virus has severely attacked the brain system including memory. The earlier a child is treated, the faster and chances of potential recovery are good. Brain and Sex Organ Stem Therapies using just energy frequencies, may be necessary if the virus has severely damaged the organs.

Reliability of this energy boosting therapy

Our research in America covers 20 years with good results. It uses the technology of homeopathy, aura, quantum physics, stem cells and nano to come up with magnetic-energy programmes to meet the challenges at their roots. Over in Singapore, we have seen noticeable improvements within one to two months for young children, while the adults could take much longer time depending on the extent of brain damage. It also helps those who are ADD or ADHD. There are usually no side effects on energy healing.

Promising results in Singapore

Many young children have been helped. One five-year old girl responded favourably within five months and was transferred to a normal school. One four-year old boy was "hysteria" 100 per cent of the time and restless when he first saw me. He refused to be tested. After a month, he was eighty per cent focused and allowed me to check. After two months, he was ninety five per cent focused in spite of having flu. The parents confirmed the progress. One boy was so depressed that he wanted to take his life away and is now much better. We are all very encouraged that these children will have the potential hope of recovery. It works well in those who believe and persist to work with us, to see the good results. Come and see that it is really good!

Other helpful guides to autistic children

Embrace organic food and toiletries, gluten-free products and with less chemicals and drug, will help to minimise allergic reactions and immune suppression for the body to fight and heal by itself. Healthy water and air are plus factors.
