

Autism and Cancer

Find out how autism and cancer are linked and how they're passed on from parents to their children by Peter Lim

Our NeB research shows there is a potential link between autism and cancer. A lady in her 30s had kidney and brain cancer and underwent chemotherapy and radiation. I had many difficulties in identifying the root causes as most of the evidence had been removed by the chemo. But a small reading on autism virus led me to discover that her tumour causes were linked to the virus. She returned to her country in haste. I just found out that she has new cancer found in her lungs and ovaries after a year. This could be the beginning of many cancer spots. She is unmarried and had no sexual intercourse. Her autism virus was traced to her mum when she was conceived.

Timely Removal of Tumours

Another lady in her 50s had tumours in her breasts, uterus, liver, stomach, skin and lymphs. Her roots were traced to autism virus during marriage, potentially passed on by her hubby. Her tumours were close to 9cm and spreading. Within three months, we removed all infections that caused the tumours to grow, and the tumour activities stopped completely. It has been over a year and she is looking good with no trace of tumours.

Another lady in her late 40s had excessive uterus bleeding which led to the removal of her whole uterus. She sought our help. Her root cause was mainly due to the autism virus that was present in the uterus. I traced the link to her hubby who had stage 4 brain tumour and died within a short time. By her account, I knew the hubby had the autism viral attack and passed the virus through the sperm to affect her. All her three children were also affected. She and her youngest had many frequent health woes. The challenge was timely removed, and she was spared from any tumour attack.

Helping Yourselves First

At least 95% of the adults with autistic children who came to see me sought my help to treat their children, but not themselves. This is not wise, as they are the breadwinners and caregivers that bind the family together. These adults did not realise they were the ones passing the virus to their children during pregnancy. Over the years ever since they were mere foetus or during marriage, this R1H2 virus has been attacking their sexual organs, their breasts, brain and other organs to weaken the immune system. Then other pathogens joined in to attack and bring about brain disorders to cause other organ dysfunctions. The body then loses its defence power and allows these pathogens to build tumour colonies.

In our NeB studies, I found many of my patients have most tumours found in the breasts, uterus (prostate) and the brain, where the autism virus initially resides. Others had attacks in the lungs, kidneys, liver and stomach, but rarely in the skin, lymphs and colon. Besides potential tumours, many have experienced heavy and irregular menses, children's birth defects, inability to give birth, aborted pregnancies, growth of fibroid, ovary/uterus cysts and endometriosis. Some experienced defects of the heart, brain, eyes, feet and other abnormal growth, besides frequent migraines, mental focus disorders, memory loss and quick temper. If the virus is due to R1H2, these challenges are passed on without exceptions and in different degrees to their children's children; and parents don't realise this.

One lady had her only son treated for autism with good success. She has the virus in her and was warned not to conceive until the virus is entirely removed. Her hubby refused to come for treatment and continued to affect her while she was under our therapy. She was caught in the act and wanted to keep her baby. After 16 weeks she realised the foetus had kidney cyst which came from her ovary. She had already lost and aborted her second son. This third son also died within days after birth due to waste blockage.

Convenient and Effective Therapy

In our NeB research, we potentially remove all infections including the R1H2 virus within a month and help to repair and restore damaged organs depending on the severity within six months. At least 10% of our patient requires further help, but most have positive reports. Once the virus is removed, it should not return unless the person engages with a carrier through sexual acts. Our NeB research is based on five sciences relating to nano, aura, quantum physics, homeopathy and stem cell energy, using programmed energy patches stuck to the skin and by distant healing sessions. Therapy is convenient and yet so effective with little time lost and no side effects. Don't wait for your turn to come, but act swiftly for the family's good.
