

Beyond Brain Development Disorders

Autism could potentially lead to high cancer rates especially in adults!

by Peter Lim

The virus could first reside in the sexual organs and gradually some will migrate to the brain to cause noticeable brain disorders, linking to the various organs. Then other pathogens join forces to attack to weaken the immune system further. Over time, they cause organ disorders leading to potential tumour growth and spread.

Our NeB research shows that if the virus comes from the wife, about 20% of the spouse will inherit the virus through the penis that touches the vagina wall which harbours the virus. If it starts from the husband, the wife will inherit 100% through the sperm. From our studies of over 600 cases, any child that passes through an infected womb will automatically inherit the virus without exceptions.

Hope for Autism

Mental focus and brain disorders other than from R1H2 could also be caused by bacteria, viruses, fungi, allergies, parasites, toxins and tumours. These do not usually appear to being passed down to generations. Once recovered, the disorders could come back again if the brain is under attack. However, in our NeB research here for the last six years, once we remove the R1H2 virus in quick time, the virus will not return unless associated through sexual intercourse with a carrier. It is wise and prudent for couples to remain faithful to prevent the spread. Our NeB Research shows that our energy therapy not only removes the virus but also potentially repairs and restores the damaged organs and brain through stem cell energy. The affected child or adult will potentially be set free to lead a normal life!

A male in his late 50s has late stage cancer traced to autism and many pathogens. He got R1H2 from his wife who also has cancer, with three children, one aged 10 going through operations, all linked to R1H2 as the starter. Another affected mother had her eldest son recovered after our NeB therapy. But her hubby refused to come for treatment and affected the wife. They had earlier lost the second child during birth. They lost the third again after he was found to have kidney cysts from mum's ovary cyst and died within days after birth. In another family, both spouses have the virus with an affected foetus. Our latest research shows we can treat both mother and foetus, and after delivery, I found they had no R1H2. Another family had the adults and children treated by us. The wife was anxious for another child, but fearful of another autistic child. After our therapy, she conceived, and the child just born had no virus. A man had repeated strokes and heart attacks in spite of the heart stems, and traced the attacks to R1H2!

There is great hope of autism and tumour recovery from our NeB research studies and in quick time, and we are very excited to share this discovery to benefit the world.

Many believe that autism is a child's brain development disorder due to vaccinations, toxicities, nutritional deficiencies and allergies. But our findings for over 10 years which originated from the United States found that out of 200 children with autism studied 99.9% were traced to R1H2 virus, which was passed down from generation to generation without exceptions.

NeB Research Findings

Our local NeB research went further to discover that more than one in two of 100 cancer/tumour cases here have been linked first to R1H2 virus. This is the world's first shocking discovery that so many cancer cases are linked. Similar findings of such link have been recently reported by the New York Times, but the high incidence of related cancer is not discovered until now. Besides cancer found usually in the sex organs (which include the breasts), brain and other key organs, we found many cases of fibroid, ovarian/uterus cysts, endometriosis, birth defects, inability to give birth, heavy and irregular menses, migraines, mental focus and brain disorders including memory loss have been linked. Birth defects include heart, brain, eyes, feet, and other abnormal growth. Recently, six cancer cases from a cancer specialist in the US were sent to me for analysis. Four have been linked! The virus could lead to Parkinson's disease!
