

Defeating 'diseases'

By Peter Lim

Discover alternative options to diagnose and treat illnesses

Our five-year research into energy healing has given us much inspiration in the discovery of how to defeat diseases. Thanks to the thousand people who came forward to contribute to our research findings. It is now becoming the state-of-the-art technology to track the hideouts of these diseases and to strike swiftly at the specific targets, to potentially defeat them. It is neither magical nor spiritual, but science and technology in the making. Results are preliminary but very encouraging, holding great promises for the future.

Dealing with health challenges

From our research, the average person has about 10 to 15 health challenges at any one time, covering attacks from bacteria, viruses, allergies, fungi, parasites, toxins and tumours that cause energy imbalance to our body. Often, one to three symptoms are being dealt with, but the rest are left undetected and the root causes not dealt with effectively. These diseases are recycled back, and the real issues are not dealt with on a more permanent basis.

The diseases will usually hide in the organs and various parts of our body and sometimes beyond the reach of our immune system. Once they remain in our body, they build "nests" and grow their colonies, inviting other pathogens to weaken the body.

Tracking diseases at their roots

Instead of treating the whole body, which takes a longer time to recover, we discovered an effective way to track the diseases like hunting dogs. Once spotted, we act swiftly like the eagles, to strike on the prey in their roots and hideouts. In this way, the challenges can be effectively dealt with quickly without adversely affecting the rest of the body. The ultimate goal is to restore the immune system in its rightful function, to be in the driver's seat, and to effectively fight off and defend against all invasions.

This system of recovery is non-invasive and has been proven to be good and promising in the various applications of health disorders – sleep, mental depression, pain, diabetes, eyes, skin, organ dysfunctions including arterial blockages, autism, weight and hair loss, and even tumours (mm size), and others.

NeB Technology: A photo tells it all

A picture tells a thousand words. Without disclosing to us their health challenges, we take a photo of clients and tell them all the hidden health secrets that they may not even know using our technology. Most of the time, they are all surprised in the accuracy of our findings. They are often referred by loved ones or friends who have benefitted from, and gained confidence in, our technology. Once they agree to come on board as part of our research, they "donate to our NeB Research Fund" for a contracted period of time.

We target dedicated programs at the hideouts on a regular basis, depending on the severity of the challenges and without their need to be around. They also use our NeB patches, which contain magnetic information energy on 24/7 basis. We give recommendation on organic food, supplements, avoidance, etc, with lifestyle changes on a holistic approach. Whenever they have "health attacks", they feedback to us by phone or messages, and we respond swiftly to give them timely advice and action to deal against the threats. In a short period of time, the root causes are being dealt with, and the clients are on the road to health recovery.

Being open to new ideas and technologies

Often we are controlled by the 0.0001% that we know, but it is the 99.9999% new ideas that we do not know that we must be open to, to have a permanent breakthrough. The people who have come forward to embrace our new concepts and technologies have enjoyed health transformation. This is what NeB is all about with the help of nature and all powerful tools to make health a lasting difference – in the field of quantum physics, homeopathy, aura, stem cell and nano technologies.

Read all the testimonies from our many articles in the past for a health vision ahead. Come forward to witness and benefit this transformation, and potentially say goodbye to health woes.
