

Bacterial Attacks

Road to Recovery

By Peter Lim

Introduction

When bacteria attack, it can destroy organs and cause irreparable damages. Using temporary solutions to treat the symptoms are not the best answers. Building a stronger immune system is the key to long-term solutions.

Bacteria attacks can come in many forms. They include asthma, sinus, bronchitis, pneumonia, tuberculosis, gingivitis, tonsillitis, meningitis, mycoplasma, staph, strep, e-coli, gastroenteritis, peptic ulcers, dysentery, cholera, osteoarthritis, lupus, sleep apnea, etc. They attack most parts of the body including the brain, lungs, nose, ears, eyes, stomach, intestines, bladder, ovaries, uterus, kidneys, skin, blood, joints, spinal cord, bones and heart. Once the body is weakened, it is vulnerable to cancer attacks.

In our research studies on the use of the nano-energy booster patch therapy, we have discovered its success against many bacterial attacks. The bacteria are dealt at their roots, followed by stem cell energy therapy to repair the organ damage. Symptoms of health challenges are traced to the roots and firmly dealt with, without side effects even to the babies. Many are on the road to recovery. It could benefit you once you discover that it is so good and effective. This is a magnetic therapy, programmed to specific health challenges over a 20-year research on countless live studies.

Case studies

A lady in mid-thirties had frequent migraines for nearly 20 years. She had sleep disorders, mood swings and depression. She had pain all over including the abdomen. She had urinary tract infection, vaginal itch, monthly colds and a runny nose. For years she was in search for a long-term answer but found none. Her sicknesses affected her family and social life, resulting in her giving up her professional career.

We found that she had a high degree of bacterial attack in her cerebellum, and the bacteria caused inflammation, pain and stress. The brain stress then led to many organ disorders. Within 4 months of using the nano-energy booster patches, she recovered and was back at work.

A 10-year old girl was attacked by meningitis when she was 4 and hospitalised for 6 months. Right up to the age of 10, she had to be constantly on medication. Her spinal cord and body were twisted very badly and she was unable to control her bladder, often wetting the floor. At one time, her mum had to take out her faeces. Her dad often cried as there was no help for her daughter whose condition was constantly deteriorating.

She came to us and we found that parasites had attacked her spinal cord from top to bottom, resulting in her twisted body. Three days after undergoing patch therapy, she was able to control her bladder. Within 5 months, the parasites had disappeared. She was transformed to a positive and outward-looking girl, unlike her past. A stem cell energy patch is used to repair her spinal cord!

A lady in her mid-seventies came back after her travel to Japan. She was coughing badly and hospitalised during the peak season of H1N1. After more than a week of many tests, she was found to have a serious pneumonia attack. At the hospital, I used a patch programme which included the use of colds-bacteria to deal with her pneumonia. Within 3 days, she was discharged and together with medications, she recovered very quickly.

A hospital staff in her mid-fifties had persistent cough and was often unable to breathe well. She had artery blocks and allergies in the lungs and nose. The bacteria attacked her ovaries and uterus and developed into fibroids. By the 3rd month, she was on the way to recovery as the root causes were dealt with, with the help of the patch therapy.

A lady in her early forties had ovarian and breast cysts and a lump in her neck removed. She had early menopause at 41 and had suffered eczema disorders due to allergies for 20 years. We found that she had mycoplasma in her ovary and uterus, which caused her abnormal growth and premature menopause. She had skin allergies. Within 3 months of using our patch therapy, her mycoplasma disappeared and her eczema disorder was much under control. A stem cell energy patch was used to repair her damaged uterus.

If you have been looking for a long-term cure for your illness, drop by and understand how this therapy could benefit you and your loved ones. A free test will be rendered upon appointment with a brief hand-and-feet health check. Share this discovery with others once you have benefitted from it.
